

ENANI

BIO

Annie Tsai, better known as Enani, is a cinematic bass artist whose music bridges emotional storytelling and modern melodic bass. Raised in Southern California's Inland Empire, she began playing piano at age five, initially learning through movie themes rather than traditional classical repertoire. She later added viola and guitar to her musical palette, composing her first song by age eleven.

Enani went on to double major in music and computer science at UC Berkeley, where her curiosity for sound design led her to a DAW for the first time. While working a career in tech, she began electronic music production in 2020 and performed live for the first time the following year. In 2024, she launched 53 to Enani, a self-imposed challenge to release one track per week for 53 weeks, completed in mid-2025. That same year, she won the SLANDER x ICON Collective scholarship and attended ICON Collective shortly before its closure. Since her start in 2020, her SoundCloud releases have garnered over 60,000 streams and led to performances in Los Angeles and New York City, including live vocal appearances in LA.

Inspired by artists such as Hans Zimmer, ILLENIUM, and Danny Olson, Enani builds emotionally immersive soundscapes, creating a genre-fluid experience that balances introspection with intensity.
